MR. CUTCHEON TALKS TEMPERANCE. He Makes an Earnest Plea in Behalf of Total Abstinence.

Representative Cutcheon of Michigan delivered an address last night at the Western Presbyterian Church to a large and attentive audience. Without gloves the Congressman handled social customs and regarded many of them as directly responsible for drunkenness. Temper-ance and religion, from his stand, are one responsible for drunkenness. Temperance and religion, from his stand, are one and the same.

He had never yet found the time when he could not conscientiously advocate total abstinence. Temperance societies had no doubt accomplished a vast amount of good, he believed, and the church presented the only safe avenue of escape. It required a great deal of moral courage for an inebriate of years' standing to break off from the drinking habt. In the religion of Christ absolute safety only could be found. During the coming Christmas season men and women would be tempted and many would drift into lives of sin.

Washington is the worst wine drinking city in the country, he declared. The hope of the temperance cause was with the boys and girls, and, believing this, his bill providing for temperance instructions in the public schools of the District had been introduced. Mr. Cutcheon closed his address with an appeal to the children to be total abstainers.

WILL NOT RECOMMEND IT.

The Commissioners Will Not Approve the W. & G. R. R. 's Proposed Chango. The changes proposed by the Washing-ton and Georgetown Railroad in their tracks at the Capitol and at Fourteenth street have met with such opposition that street have met with such opposition that the Commissioners will not ask Congress to authorize the changes. This will not prevent the establishment of the cable system upon all lines of the road. The Commissioners will recommend that the Washington and Georgetown Railroad shall pay a tax of 4 per cent, on its gross receipts.

shall pay a tax of 4 per cent, on its gross receipts.

It is understood that the extension of the railway along Bridge street, Georgetown, to the Free Bridge will be authorized, while the question of the short W. & G. line from the Peace Monument to the Baltimore and Ohio depot has not been fully determined upon. It is not unlikely that this three-block line may be excepted from the cable system and connection made on it either by horses or electric-motor cars. The proposal to cross the Avenue bridge at Rock Creek instead of the M-street bridge as now has not been decided upon, but will form the subject of a special investigation by the engineers.

1630 Fourteenth street, last night under the auspices of Washington Lodge, No. 8, Independent Order of Good Templars. There were a number of interesting addresses on the programme, interspersed with vocal and instrumental selections. Mr. R. A. McMurray recited "I Have Drauk My Last Glass" in a very effective way. Daniel K. Sargent of the War Department made some appropriate remarks and concluded with a suitable recitation. "Bringing in the Sheaves" was the title of one of the vocal selections, and it was so much appreciated that it was repeated. Miss Martin presided at the organ. It is proposed to continue these meetings in the Inture.

Theosophy, he said, offers a theory of nature and life which is founded upon knowledge acquired by seges of the past. Theosophy is truth in its most comprehensive form, and the people in New York who interest them-ielves in this theory are of all classes and hold all manners of opinion. The object of these societies is to gain a more com-piete knowledge of what man is, and they do not restrict one to any particular fromdo not restrict one to any particular iron-clad belief. They believe in mutual help and general tolerance of ideas.

Maurice Quinlan, Hack Inspector—The all-night cars have taken a great many "fares" from the cabbles. Lots of swells that used to be regular patrons of the cabs now shine in resplendent evening cestume on the seat of an owl car and spend the difference in eigarettes. There is a delightful air of democracy pervading these midnight liners. You may see a tailor-made dude and a brogan-shoed, farmel-shirted hod-carrier hob-nobbing teyther in unconscious slumber, both under the influence of an opiate that increases the skull dimensions in the morning. I know a certain newspaper man who frequently boards a car going east, and curling himself up in the car, sleeps until he has traveled the route over several times. He is well known to the conductors, and they always wake him at the right end of the line and collect the fares in a lump. The journalist says that the dull rumbling sound of the wheels, the clink of the hoofs on the rough stones, all form a lullaby, sweet to his cars as a mother's cradle song. Some of his friends state that the courts Morpheus under different circumstances, but that's another story, as Kipling says.

Captain Lusk—In my report I recommended that the number of hours in which lamps should be lighted during the year ought to be increased from 2,000 to 3,000. I have personally appeared before the Comgressional Committee in regard to the matter, and upon which I will have a report completed in a few days. The report of Professor Rowland of Johns Hopkins University and other members of the committee, in reference to the number and condition of overhead and underground wires in the District, will not be ready until the meeting of Congress next December.

D. F. Longstreet—The demand for rapid transit in Washington is the occasion of ready until the meeting of Congress next December.

D. F. Longstreet—The demand for rapid transit in Washington is the occasion of my visit here. You, of course, have one cable line in operation, but I learned that there were other rapidly growing portions of the city where speedy transportation was needed. I just came from Detroit and Saginaw, Mich., where I made a careful study of the Rae system of electric railways in operation in both cities. The object of my visit East is to examine carefully all the electric systems in operation in the larger cities and determine on the best system to be introduced in Denver, where I am connected with the street railway corporations. Washington certainly ought to have an improved electric line, and, in my opinion, it is very foolish for the Washington and Georgetown Company to put in a cable line on the Avenue. It will not only be a very expensive undertaking, but will break the Avenue uptor a long period. Electricity is bound to surplant the cable system: Since coming here I have learned that they are experimenting with a new scheme here which is novel ard ingenious. It is proposed to use a slet and conduit similar to the cable line and dispense with the overhead wires. They claim that they can transfer the power by the means of friction gears upon the ctr, which connect with the slot beneath.

Colonel James A. Gray of Atlanta—I have been in New York the past month organizing some phosphate companies to operate in Florida. He imagined that he and Campbell had previously had some trouble, while, on the contrary, they had been warm friends. ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

The Annual Meeting Held at Foundry Church Last Night. At Foundry M. E. Church last evening he annual meeting of the Associated Charities was held. Rev. George Ellott delivered a foreible Rev. George Ellott delivered a forcible and appropriate sermon on General Booth's plan. Dr. Ellott pictured lives of poverty in London, and said he regarded the work of the Salvation Army in that city as something remarkable. The plan was to take up wasted men and material and utilize them. A helping hand should be extended the weak. Dr. Eliott regarded General Booth as a very wonderful man and leading in a good work.

At the conclusion of the sermon President Douglass called the society to order, and made a few appropriate remarks. The society's work he regarded as very satisfactory. He did not think a superintendent of charities in the District should be an outsider, but one thoroughly conversant with the District.

The annual report of Secretary and Treasurer Emery wis read. It showed that the society had done a great deal of work during the year.

Rev. T. S. Baldwin closed the meeting with a short address.

As he was struggling to release himself several tons of earth fell and covered him to a depth of six feet. J. F. Cox, the foreman, and his men worked hard to release the buried man, but he had evidently been dead some time when they reached him. Robertson was an inmate of the asylum and had been violently insane, but had about recovered. Coroner Paterson held an inquest yesterday morning, and the jury returned a verdict that no blame could be attached to any one for the accidents.

This morning, a short time after 10 o'clock, an old gentleman stood before the work of art and scrutinized it with a critical eve. He shifted his glasses off and on a nose that was crimson and bulbous with the bloom of the rye. The stranger reached up and passed his hand over the canvass and felt, with evident disappointment, the ridges of paint. Drawing a long sigh of regret, he exclaimed to a group of clerks who stood regarding him curiously:

"Gennemen, my son Davy, who was in Washington' a few days ago, made a visit here and writ me 'bout this pictoor, which is the livin' himage of one that was stole from me in York State a month ago, where I keeps a store, an' I journeed the hull way to 'dentify it; but, gennemen, the Deestrict has 'caped arrest for dealin in stol'n goods. William Hammond, alias William Davis, a young colored boy, was on Satur-Davis, a young colored boy, was on Saturday afternoon detected in the act of tapping a till in the store of Mrs. Elizabeth Hayes, No. 745 Tenth street southeast. Hammond, in the Police Court to-day, denied having been in the store, but said that another boy went in to purchase a package of cigarettes and he waited at the corner for him. Mrs. Hayes was positive that Hammond was the boy, because she grabbed him and looked at him square in the face. Judge Miller said that the defendant's story was not a very plausible one, and he sent him down for ninety days.

"PSYCHOMETRY."

A Medium Entertains an Andience at Grand Army Hall. "There are various opinions which have led to considerable discussion," said Mrs. S. H. Lake, the spiritualistic medium, last night at Grand Army Hall, "in regard to my subject 'Reincarnation'—its reason ableness or otherwise—or, in other words my subject 'Reincarnation'—its reasonableness or otherwise—or, in other words entrancement."

"I must, in order to do my subject and my audience justice," she said, 'respond to the emotions that move me while I am in the spiritual atmosphere. It is only through the possibility of assimilating thought that we can gather in those ideas which connect the material with the spiritual. Reincarnation is merely a vibration from material to spiritual things. "I will say, in answer to one of the questions sent me, there is no language in the realm of space. Reincarnation is only another word for re-embodiment, and the physical sciences can only be explained through the laws of reincarnation. Put into external operation what you have learned—such is reincarnation. Reincarnation is the generating power of the spirit. People are troubled too much about their bodies. The spirit is the thing which they should have under consideration.

"The spirit land has never been laid out upon a map. No one knows its dimensions. Death is but the vibration of the body to a higher plane—from material to immaterial space. In answer to another question I will say that there are some unhappy spirits. It is on account of their not having vibrated into the sphere of reincarnation."

It is the telling by handkerchiefs and gloves, placed by persons in the audience upon the rostrum, what emotions they are or have been experiencing, what is passing through their minds, whether feelings of sorrow or feelings of joy, etc. Mrs. Lake was very successful in this effort, judging by the responses made by the parties whom she interrogated.

"What is that? Is that pool-room open on Sundays?" sharply asked the Judge.

"Yes, sir, it was open last night and there were seventy-five people in there and all of them under 20 years of age, except eight or ten." answered the officer.

"By what authority do they keep such a place as that open on the Sabbath day?" continued the Judge.
